Selling NEC's Award-Winning Plasma Displays and Projectors*

Chicago, January 9, 2006 – NEC Solutions (America), Inc. (NEC), an industry leader in projectors and plasma displays, announces the launch of their completely redesigned website which offers a simplified and streamlined look that makes it easier for the user to quickly locate the right NEC projector or plasma for their application. Along with the new efficient design, the site was also enhanced to optimize search engine visibility, so that it will be easier for the customer to locate the official website of NEC projectors and plasmas from their preferred search engines. Finally, NEC is opening an online outlet store, where customers can directly buy current overstocked projectors and plasmas and end-of-life items. All of this can be found at the previous URL: www.necvisualsystems.com.

“We expect a great reaction from our customers when they visit this redesigned website,” said Pierre Richer, senior vice president, Visual Systems Division, NEC Solutions America. “Along with the fresh new look, it is now faster and easier for our customers to find the information they need right now.”
